

ALPFA recognizes the 50 Most Powerful Latinas in Corporate America in Fortune Magazine

NEW YORK, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, March 14, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Association of Latino Professionals for America (ALPFA) is proud to announce the 2018 Most Powerful Latinas list. ALPFA's media partner, Fortune Magazine published the list today: <http://fortune.com/2018/03/14/most-powerful-latinas-2018/>

“ALPFA’s purpose is connecting Latino leaders for impact – in their homes, their workplace, and their communities. Today we celebrate the impact of these powerful Latina executives and entrepreneurs who are blazing a trail for others to follow,” said Charlie Garcia, ALPFA’s CEO.

On April 24, ALPFA will hold the 50 Most Powerful Latinas Summit (MPL) at Columbia University. The day-long MPL Summit connects the most powerful Latinas in corporate America and high-potential Rising Stars, which represent the next generation of powerful Latinas. For information on the Summit, go to MPL Summit Agenda.

“We are thrilled that the list of nominees doubled this year, resulting in 15 new names on the list. We are delighted that People en Español is publishing the list as well, along with Latino Leaders magazine, which will print the list in its next edition,” noted ALPFA leader Raymond Arroyo.

The list prioritizes women leading large public companies with global operating roles (34 of them), followed by entrepreneurs who lead middle market businesses (5 of them), and women who lead global executive support roles (11 of them).

Some of our top supporters for the MPL event are: United Airlines, Salesforce, UnitedHealth, HBO, Goldman Sachs, Walmart, Vanir / CIT.
