enough, that's fine” and not necessary to report. Once it's determined that this 'damage' is actually 'wear and tear' by Enterprise's own 'damage evaluator' the vehicle is mysteriously found to have new damage which was used to create a legitimate claim. The subsequent photos with the new damage were inserted into a PDF and sent to Howe to substantiate the money demand. Lee Port Authority police launched a criminal investigation after reviewing the evidence and the money demand ended on the same day as the police started investigating. National management dismissed the entire event as 'human error.' It was all just a big mistake.)
