

Lovingly Wants Your Stories of Unconditional Love for Mother's Day!

Lovingly wants your stories of unconditional love for Mother's Day, so they can gift a one-of-a-kind bouquet to outstanding mothers across the U.S. and Canada.

FISHKILL, N.Y., US, April 11, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- She may be your mom, your grandma, your caregiver, or a member of your community who has earned the title mom in your heart through her unconditional love and devotion.

If you have a story about a uniquely important mom in your life, Lovingly wants to hear about it. Whether it's sad, happy, moving, or simply fills you with warmth and gratitude, it's potentially the winner of Lovingly's celebratory Mother's Day contest.

"Lovingly is all about strengthening and celebrating relationships," says Lovingly co-founder and managing partner, Joe Vega, "so Mother's Day is very important to us. The thought of unconditional love and giving instantly conjures images of our mothers, so there's a lot to celebrate, to say the least."

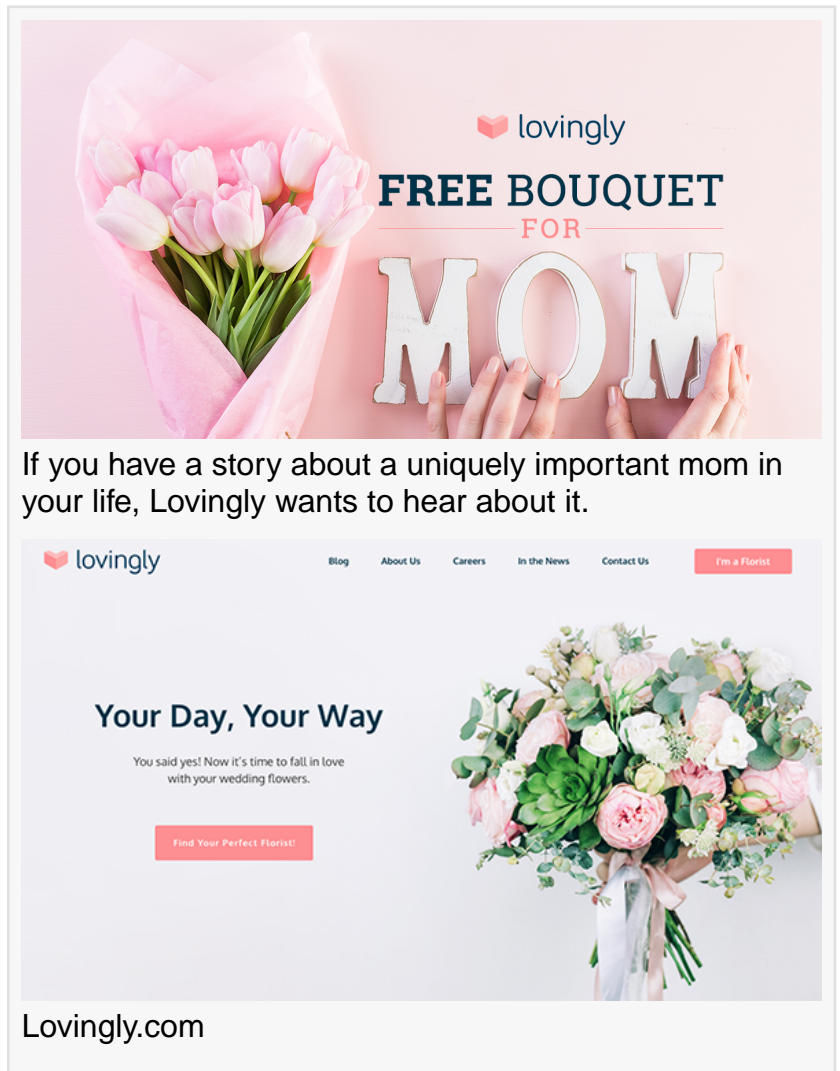

"We rolled out the competition last week and the response so far is amazing!" Joe continues. "People started sharing the post with friends and family almost immediately. We have people nominating grandmothers who brought them up, friends nominating friends who are devoted to their children, and mothers who gave and continue to give selflessly. All the stories are very moving and inspiring."

"Lovingly partner florists have also responded brilliantly," Joe smiles. "The Lovingly team will ultimately select five winners, then contact our partner florists in the locality of the winning nominees, who will create beautiful one-of-a-kind bouquets and hand-deliver them to their doors."
