CHICAGO, IL, UNITED STATES, April 18, 2018
/EINPresswire.com/ -- Wedding Rental Company
Announces New Video Showcasing Novel Holographic
Display in Wedding Reception Lobby

In a move sure to garner excitement from wedding planners and newly engaged couples alike, a Chicago-area wedding rental company has created a new video showcasing their brand new wedding hologram rental services. The company, aptly named WeddingHolograms.com, promises a new way to impress friends, family, and guests at weddings, receptions, and events: hologram displays. When you watch the company's new video, it's easy to see that these holograms are not the cliches of 80's movies, but instead elegant and sophisticated artistic creations--creations that are sure to be the next big thing at weddings.

The demo video has a unique role because it's often difficult for those unfamiliar with the technology to visualize modern holographic installations. Modern holographic displays for weddings and receptions often feature intricate and lifelike designs, such as dual wedding bands or an animated guest book with images. The way that these images can trick the eye--existing in a space that's both realistic and fantastic--is difficult to do justice with words. That's why the showcase video released by WeddingHolograms.com is so helpful.

“We know that once people actually see these displays in person, they tend to fall in love,” Mark Smith, owner and founder of WeddingHolograms.com said. “No pun intended. So, the video is really designed to show off what a typical hologram experience might look like. All of the designs and styles we show are available for wedding couples to customize today. They can really make it their own, and there’s something about seeing that in a video that really helps it hit home.” Once couples see the videos, Smith continued, they’re always enamored with the technology and the elegance that they see.

For something as novel as a hologram, the rental of these devices is surprisingly affordable. Although the video doesn't touch on the price specifically, the accompanying website does make mention of comparably priced rentals, such as photo booths, DJs, or lights. But the video makes clear that these holograms can really make statement. Guests will be impressed, boosting the holographic display in social media stories and memories. Photo booths, on the other hand, have become somewhat stale. Wedding goers are really looking for the next big thing, especially in upscale areas such as the Chicago suburbs.

"And what you see in the video is really just the beginning," Smith said. He mentioned that the purpose of the video is to give people a baseline of what they might expect their own wedding hologram to look like.

WeddingHolograms.com offers services that will build hologram displays for receptions and weddings from the ground up, in completely custom fashion. So if you've always wanted a wedding that stands out, you're in luck. These holograms, displayed in wedding or reception areas, can really take the shape or form of just about anything.

The holograms on display in the video illustrate just how sophisticated, chic, and modern a wedding can suddenly become with the right showpiece. Given how expensive, competitive, and luxurious weddings have become, these hologram displays could bring the wow-factor for years to come.
