Budapest, Hungary – April, 2018

theancienthome.com, leading supplier of furniture and accent decor inspired by ancient civilizations, neoclassicism and European antiques today announced their expansion in the US. The company, which prides itself on crafting unique one-of-a-kind museum replicas and home wares inspired by ancient art, has come to agreement with several museum shops and museum departments to ship its products to America.

“We are thrilled to partner with museums in the US and showcase our products for educational lectures, showrooms and museum shops in this region of the world”, says owner and CEO of The Ancient Home, Juan Gamero. “Our passion and dedication to making best-quality ancient art reproductions is already well known. It’s always a great honor to be able to purvey our artwork to museums as we already do in Europe.”

The Ancient Home has been producing hand-crafted ancient decor and furniture for European clientele since 2016. The company revealed that The Ancient Home has already integrated a toll-free telephone number for their customers in North America as of January this year, and while the company will continue manufacturing and shipping from Europe, the business will grow in the Americas with the possibility to open a new office across the pond.

Juan Gamero, had this to say, “We are delighted with our partnership with various museums in the US and look forward to continue introducing our products in the American market. There is a synergy in this part of the world that we feel will result in a valuable market for us. We had already begun shipping the first US order as of December 2017.”
