Celebrated Author Calum Cumming Hits the Online Shelves

SCOTLAND, UNITED KINGDOM, April 19, 2018
/EINPresswire.com/ -- Cumming wrote five books that trigger the imagination from Cal's journey throughout Scotland in "Commons" to his awakenings to adulthood in "Of the Road".

His wide collection of poetry that mirrors family, loss, and love in "The Quicksilver Chases Gold" to the funny laughs of "Jack Nicholson" and the fateful read of "Robert James".

Cumming's website, <http://calumcumming.com> will soon be a social network for avid readers that will connect to other literary community, book clubs and even participate in discussions.

It will take his readers soon to go shelf-less and take their reading adventures on the go. The site will also feature subscriptions, email newsletter, and blog posts.

About the Author:

After leaving High School in Aberdeen, Calum trained himself as a Construction Engineer. He spent a year at Newbattle Abbey College in Edinburgh where he re-discovered his greater love of the Arts. He subsequently graduated MA in 1992 at Glasgow University. He enjoys travelling and meeting new people. His former wife is a Los Angelean. He is a former national amateur cycling champion at schoolboy level; team champion in 1977.
