Applicant Tracking System Software Market Development, Shares, Size and Forecast Up to 2025

HOUSTON, TX, UNITED STATES, April 23, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- An Applicant Tracking System manages the recruiting process by collecting and organizing applicant information. These systems are used in the recruiting and hiring of new talent. By using an ATS, recruiters reduce the time spent reading resumes and screening potential applicants. In addition, ATSs assist in posting positions to job boards and communicating with candidates. They store applicant information in a centralized system of record so that candidate information can be retained until relevant information becomes available. They are often implemented by HR departments in order to boost efficiency during the hiring process and simplify the qualification of candidates.
