

Experts to Discuss Iran's Missile, Nuclear Program

Panelists discuss Iran's ballistic missile program, nexus with the nuclear program and the way forward

WASHINGTON, DC, USA, May 7, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- As the president nears his decision on the JCPOA and how to deal with Iran's threat, on Wednesday, May 9, 2018, the National Council of Resistance of Iran-U.S. Representative Office (NCRI-US) will host a panel of leading subject-matter experts to discuss the missile program of Iran, its ties with the nuclear weapons program, its threatening impact in the region and ways to counter it. The panel starts at 10:30 am and ends at noon at the Mayflower Hotel.

Iran's Ballistic Buildup: The March Toward Nuclear-Capable Missiles will also be released.

This NCRI-US unique report provides details on several facets of Tehran's ballistic missile program, including its organization, structure, production, and development infrastructure, launch facilities, command centers operating inside Iran, as well as foreign assistance.

The manufacturing of ballistic missiles, with a maximum range of 2,000 km at present, is done with the sole intention of developing a nuclear delivery system.”
