

Private Jet Charter Company New Flight Charters Announces First Quarter Increase of 17.5% Year-Over-Year

Air Charter Demand Shifts Toward Larger Aircraft, Charters of Midsize through Heavy Jets Climb 41 percent

DENVER, CO, USA, May 8, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- New Flight Charters, a nationwide leader in on-demand private jet charters, announced a 17.5% year-over-year increase for the first quarter of 2018. Its growth trend continues; for the 2017 calendar year the company previously announced a 12.5% year-over-year increase.

New Flight Charters more than doubled the charter industry's growth trend for the first quarter, an 8% increase year-over-year according to TraqPak data released by Argus International.

A strong move to larger aircraft was reported, with a 41% climb in midsize, super-midsize and heavy jet charters as a group, while light jet charters and turboprop charters descended 16% and 23% respectively. New Flight Charters fliers choose their specific aircraft from an array of options for each flight, sourced per their own preferences and guaranteed for best price in the market.

This furthers a trend toward larger aircraft that was seen in 2017 (+16%).

The company attributes the increase in part to better pricing options with the growth of floating fleet aircraft availability - currently 316 aircraft from 27 operators are available to New Flight Charters' clients. Floating fleet aircraft can be quoted point-to-point without having to revolve around a certain base and incur that additional cost, thus are typically better than traditional charter quotes, jet cards and memberships.
