More About National Police Week & Police Wives of America

Congress established National Police Week in 1962. During the week many organizations collaborate together to recognizing the service and sacrifices of U.S. Law Enforcement. Police Wives of America is a national nonprofit that unites police wives across America. The organization focuses on becoming one team with one purpose. To support law enforcement men and women and their families during difficult and joyful life milestones. The Las Vegas Metro Police Wives chapter opened in May of 2009.
