VOTI Detection™, a leading detection company employing breakthrough 3D Perspective technology to deliver enhanced threat detection, announced that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) has granted the VOTI XR3D-6D X-ray scanner acceptance onto the "Approved" section of the Air Cargo Security Technology List (ACSTL). The product was previously qualified by Transport Canada in 2017.

"Acceptance by the TSA is a significant milestone and an acknowledgement of our company's collective effort and innovation within the security industry," said Rory Olson, President and CEO of VOTI Detection. "We look forward to offering the industry's cargo carriers the superior technology of our XR3D-6D systems to secure air cargo globally. We are continuing to pursue approvals of VOTI Detection's comprehensive security scanner product portfolio by the TSA."

Rory Olson, President & CEO, VOTI Detection™

By providing patent pending 3D Perspective™ and associated enabling technologies to operators, VOTI Detection™ scanners deliver remarkably sharp and more revealing images than traditional X-ray screening technology as well as threat alerts, material classification, dual energy imaging, the ability to manipulate and enhance images and more.
