

You Will Never Want to Use YouTube and Facebook After Knowing the Truth

HONG KONG, HONG KONG, May 28, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ --

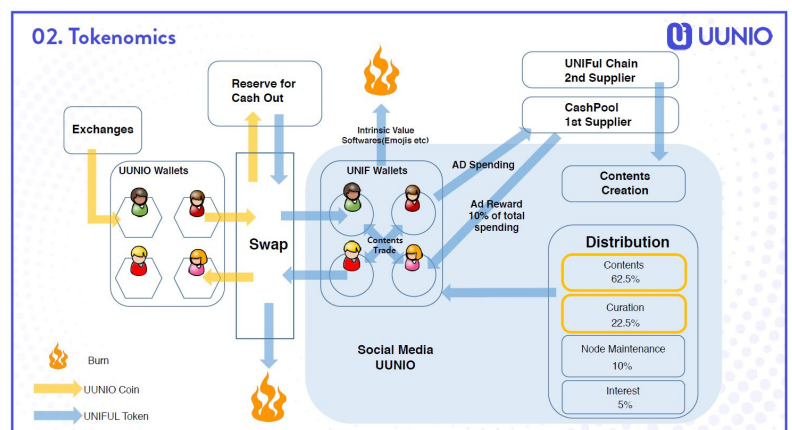

As a content creator hoping to make some money from it, nothing is more rewarding than actually getting paid for the contents created. Content creators put in a lot of work to ensure they come up with really amazing content, however, despite all the time and effort that go into creating high-quality content, platforms like YouTube, Facebook, Steemit, etc. take most part of the profits. A lot of content creators will really love a platform where they get the compensation they really deserve. The UUNIO platform is one such system that values content creators and has designed their platforms such that the content creators get the larger profit and enjoy a lifetime of compensations.

Profits of Content Creators on YouTube and Facebook

Perhaps at some point, you have uploaded contents on platforms like YouTube, Facebook, and the likes, what was the reward like? First of all getting rewards on these platforms involves driving tons of traffic to the content, and that still does not guarantee you will get rewarded. YouTube and Facebook get the lion-share of the profits made when content gets uploaded on their platforms. Rather than content creators getting rewarded for their work, these platforms get most of the rewards, even the content users do not get anything.

The Appearance of Contents Reward Platform: Steemit

Steemit is a social media and blockchain platform that rewards its users with monetary tokens.

The Appearance of Contents Reward Platform: Steemit

Steemit is a social media and blockchain platform that rewards its users with monetary tokens.

Content creators create content, then upload on to the platform, then the users interact with the content by either upvoting, recommending, or sharing the content. However, the value of the vote is dependent on the Steem power of the voter, and also upvotes from Whales have more influence than ordinary members.

The Problem With Steem

Steem may have been a very good platform if it had not implemented the compensation period feature in its structure. There is a 7 day compensation period attached to a post, after which the content creator will no longer be able to receive compensations in terms of monetary rewards as a result of upvotes, shares, and recommendations. So no matter how good the content is, after 7 days it will not yield any rewards.

UNNIO to Solve the Problem

UNNIO is a visionary and revolutionary social media platform built on the blockchain technology. While YouTube, Facebook and the rest receive a lion share of the profits made from posts by content creators, UNNIO is offering 62.5 % of the profits to the content creators, and 22.5% to content curators. The rest of the profits will go into maintenance and interest. There is no compensation period on the UNNIO platform, this means that content creators will continue to get compensated as often as their posts get upvoted, shared, or recommended. This will make it possible for the content creators to enjoy the compensations for a long time, and that is the encouragement they need to do more and come up with high-quality contents.

A 5% UUNIO reward will be awarded the community's interest pool. This interest pool is a function of the platform members' interests and UUNIO, and these values are gotten from activity points and coin usage. The activity points are as a result of the interactions with each other on the platform. This invariably means that when members of the community contribute to the platform, they get interests, and that includes bringing more members to join the community. Content creators need not worry about previous occurrences on some social platforms, and the creators will also get paid for their contents, while also enjoying copyright protection.

This content rewards platform functions using its own blockchain technology, it is a revolutionary platform that intends to be the choice platform where a lot of content will get created.
