The list of panelists included the U.K. Parliamentarian and the leader of the U.K. delegation to OSCE Mr Mark Pritchard, the U.S. politician and former U.S. Senator for Louisiana Ms Mary Landrieu, the European Commissioner for Energy and Development (2004 - 2014) Mr Andris Piebalgs, the Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary and Director of the Atlantic Council's Eurasia Center Mr John Herbst. □ □

“Over the past three years, the Forum on Energy Security for the Future has become the largest public, political and economic movement advocating for innovation and change. Taking into account the challenges that the world is facing today, only a strong energy sufficient Europe can guarantee a secure future for European citizens. And Ukraine is an important strategic element in the European energy security equation”, says the Forum founder and Burisma Group President Nikolay Zlochevskyi.

This year, the Forum focused on the topic of revolutionary thinking. At this time, economy, energy, and politics are going through major transformations.

"Energy Security for the Future stands for the search of new synergistic positions and views. We need to come up with an energy security model that would be beneficial and acceptable for all countries", says the President of Poland (1995-2005) Aleksander Kwasniewski.

"Energy is the force that drives the world today. And having an educated consistent discussion contributes to the cooperation between all countries. Through the Forum, the world learns about energy processes happening in Ukraine, says the Head of the Forum's Organizing Committee and Advisor to the Board of Directors at Burisma Group Vadym Pozharskyi.
