More than 1,800 companies and 81,365 employees across the nation vied for participation and just under 300 companies were singled out as outstanding workplaces. Inc. and Quantum Workplace evaluation the winners based on employees' responses to a unique survey. To qualify, each company had to achieve a statistically significant response rate.

While researching the entries, Inc. and Quantum saw distinct themes develop:

- Strong, positive company cultures promote remarkable individual and team performance.
- Workers at the best companies aren't mesmerized by "latest fad" giveaways especially if the daily culture isn't aligned with a truly happy environment.
- When employees feel valued, they are far more likely to be engaged. This single factor proved to be one of the largest drivers of employee engagement.
