

The Demand For Global Enterprise Application Integration Market Research Report 2018-2023

Global Enterprise Application Integration Market 2018 Overview by Key Finding, Scope, Top Impacting Factors, Investment Pockets, Drivers and Restraints

PUNE, MAHARASHTRA, INDIA, June 8, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Enterprise application integration aims towards consolidating, modernizing and coordinating various computer applications in an enterprise. It is the combination of processes, software and hardware resulting in a seamless integration of two or more enterprise systems allowing them to operate as one. Prior to the enterprise application integration (EAI), there was lack of concept of integration for corporate data as the IT systems were built in an unplanned manner.

Industry sectors such as banking, financial services, & insurance (BFSI), business services, manufacturing, healthcare and IT & Telecom are the prominent application areas of enterprise application integration (EAI). Rising demand for real time data access, increasing volume of data across enterprises and technological advancements in modern-age business dynamics are the major drivers fuelling the growth of enterprise application integration (EAI) market. Large enterprises have already implemented these integration technologies.

Key Players:

IBM Corporation, Fujitsu Ltd., Microsoft Corporation, MuleSoft, Oracle Corporation, SAP SE, Software AG, Tibco Software Inc. and Hewlett-Packard Company, among others
