PUNE, MAHARASHTRA, INDIA, June 8, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The report, titled Cloud Testing market research, provides actionable insights that supplement the growth strategies of market players. This market research report provides growth estimates, forecasts, and an in-depth analysis of all key factors at play in the Global Cloud Testing Market.

According to the senior analyst at Research N Report this market will continue to develop. According to the company, by 2018, the cloud testing market, as well as automated software quality (ASQ) and software-as-a-service (SaaS) will reach the $1 billion mark. With the advent of the cloud testing market, various mature suppliers such as Hewlett-Packard are trying to start cloud testing. In addition, major cloud infrastructure providers have added various testing capabilities in order to make greater contributions in application lifecycle management. However, Microsoft still supports its own test platform in Azure.

To keep up with this concept, companies such as Amazon Web Services (AWS) have released many developer-supported testing tools and code pipelines. At the same time, small vendors such as SOASTA and BlazeMeter have expanded their contributions to continuous delivery and data analysis to keep pace. Management vendors such as Compuware and Keynote Systems LLC are also conducting tests.
