HYDERABAD, TELANGANA, INDIA, June 12, 2018

/EINPresswire.com/ -- According to the new market research report by IndustryARC titled "Nurse Call Systems (NCS) Market: By Type (Traditional NCS, Advanced NCS, Middleware Interfaced NCS); By End Users (Hospitals & Clinics, Senior Living Facilities and Assisted Living Facilities); By Geography – Forecast (2018-2023)", the market is set to register healthy growth due to the presence of large number of hospitals, and by improving technological advancements.

North America continues to lead the market share during 2018-2023.

North America is dominating the Nurse Call Systems Market, with a share of $4.353 billion in 2017 at a CAGR of 5.80%, and is projected to reach $6.105 billion by 2023. The presence of large number of hospitals and healthcare facilities is the biggest driving factor for traditional nurse call systems market in this region. According to the WHO, 30.85% of the globally registered hospitals are in the Americas. Moreover, the rapidly aging population in the U.S., Canada and Mexico will drive the need for efficient emergency medical alarms in hospitals and assisted living facilities.

Selected / Sample Analysis done in the full Report:

The quality of nurse call systems manufactured depends on both the components used and the technologies adopted. There is very less scope for innovation in traditional nurse call systems. However, the newer systems are integrated with other healthcare devices and use latest technologies. Once the design, product features, specifications and patent filing are finished, either through its own R&D activities or licensing agreements with research institutes or universities, the company starts the manufacturing process.

The company procures a variety of raw materials and electronic components from suppliers, or produces its own components. It then manufactures the NCS either at their own factory, or outsources the production process to a third-party manufacturer. Sometimes, these NCS are also integrated with other smart devices / integrated communication systems and wireless nurse communication devices such as radios and pagers.
