Paul Ingram From Mesa Lists the Top 3 Free Best Computer Software
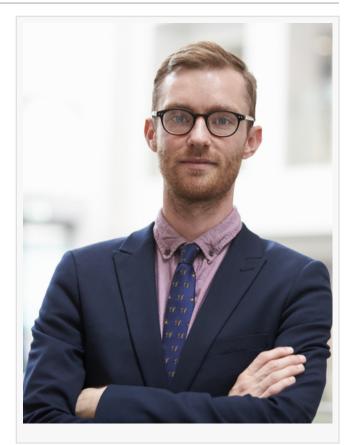

Paul Ingram showcases the top three free best computer software for antivirus, internet browser, and office software.

MESA, ARIZONA, UNITED STATES, June 12, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- It seems like every time you turn on your computer, there's a subscription to some software waiting to barrage you. Online subscriptions are like the bad car salesman who nagging you even after you've told them you aren't interested. However, these subscriptions pop up everywhere and unlike the sleazy car salesman, they can be convincing.

Fortunately, Paul Ingram has a solution to these abundantly annoying software ads. Not only are there free solutions to many common subscriptions, this software is just as capable as their paid counterparts.

Paul Ingram lists the top three free best computer software.

Antivirus

Antivirus software becomes a hassle quickly after purchasing a new computer. A month or two after enjoying your new piece of equipment, you get the first, dreaded popup. It's telling you that the antivirus has expired and it's badgering you to get more. One popup leads to two and then three…eventually driving you nearly insane. Thus, do to your insanity, you give in. You pay for a monthly subscription shakedown, just so you can utilize your still new device in peace.

Yet, while it's a necessary software to have on your device, it isn't a necessity to pay for this software.

Paul Ingram reveals that Avast is the best free antivirus software on the market. This software conducts the on-demand and on-access malware scan. Yet, it's also equipped with intelligent antivirus which blocks malicious URLs and implements behavior-based protection.

Avast is available for Windows, Mac, IOS, and Android devices.

Internet Browser

The chosen internet browser for most people is an extremely intimate ordeal. After all, the browser is your gateway to the internet. So, liking the way your browser handles is essential for net surfing success.

Yet, there are a lot of options out there. Sometimes, it's hard to accurately decide which is the best.

Paul Ingram states that Google Chrome is the best free software for internet browsing. This is due to the features inherent on this browser as well as its speed and customization.

Google Chrome was an immediate success when it was first released in 2008. Since then, it has continued to serve as an exceptional browser.

This software enables users to make this browser their own, all while maintaining clean and quick functionality.

Plus, the added security of Google's built-in malware and phishing protection adds a second layer of security.

Office Software

Regardless of what business you find yourself in, there's a growing need for office software. Yet, finding a good program, that is easy to send and receive can be difficult.

Microsoft Word is the preferred business office software. Although, Word is normally expensive. Plus, when the subscription runs out, the software is almost as annoying as the antivirus ads. Thankfully, Paul Ingram revealed that there is an office software that can meet your needs, without shelling out any cash. WPS Office is free and it offers the same capabilities and conversions of other paid office suits.

To close, Paul Ingram is happy to offer an escape from the financial restrictions of paying for software. By utilizing these three free software programs, you will save money, time, and aggravation.

Eric Ash
Web Presence, LLC
941-266-8620
email us here

This press release can be viewed online at: http://www.einpresswire.com