DORTMUND, NRW, GERMANY, June 12, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- It's the return of the most popular soccer tournament in the world, and it's expected to be a wild, competitive championship with teams like Spain and Brazil looking much improved compared to 2014.

There aren't many contenders, usually just a handful. There's defending champion Germany, of course, constant underachievers Belgium, Brazil aiming to return to glory, Spain, France and Argentina. You can bet the champ will come out of that group. Germany still has a lot of quality. Now trying to become the first time since Brazil in 1962 to defend their World Cup title looks tricky for the Germans.

Let's keep our fingers crossed, that the German team of Jogi Löw will defend the title. Thanks to Microsoft Windows Azure, you're always live there, everywhere, on every device!”

Stephan Thurek, triomis GmbH CEO
