Recently, Attorney Saffren was able to help a client receive a favorable settlement on a personal injury case. The client had entered a popular clothing department store and was walking through the store when she was caused to trip, stumble, and fall as the result of defective carpet. This caused the client to fall to the ground.

Like all businesses that are opened to the public, department stores are legally obligated to keep their premises safe and maintained for the protection of their customers. The department store then becomes responsible to pay for damages in the event that an accident happens on the premises. In this case, the carpet was negligently placed and ended up severely injuring the client.

The client suffered serious injuries including, but not limited to, a left ankle injury and a left comminuted ankle fracture. Nearly three years later, the client continues to experience great pain and discomfort from the injuries sustained. Because of this, a judge came back with the ordering that the plaintiff should receive nearly $58,000 in damages.
