LISBON, PORTUGAL, June 14, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Roses are red, violets are blue, these eco-friendly sunglasses are made of bamboo! – by Joplins Sunglasses

The morning jog on the beach has just become more eco-friendly. The new Wayfarer sunglasses by Joplins, are made from lightweight and floatable bamboo fibers. They are nearing their production date on Indiegogo, and everyone is invited to share and join in this initiative to spread positive vibes all around.

Founded in California, Joplins now also has its operations in Rio de Janeiro, where it reflects the warm, tropical climate and the upbeat vibes of samba and Lisbon, where the team has decided to establish its headquarters. According to Rafael, founder and CEO, “Plastic is around since the last 70 to 60 years, but only 9% ended up being recycled. Most of it is in landfills and will take centuries to disappear.”, and that was the reason we could not simply make another set of plastic sunglasses. “We want to create a movement of eco-friendly sunglasses in this huge industry!”.

Eco-friendliness is not the only attraction of the new Wayfares by Joplins. The fact that it is made of bamboo gives the Wayfarers glasses extra lightweight properties. They are even lighter than its plastic and regular acetate competitors making it extra comfortable on the face. In fact it is so light that it floats on the water. They are the glasses that you will not lose whenever you are in the ocean.

Another incredible feature is extra resistant lenses, super polarized lenses that include 9 layers of protection:

- 1 layer of the polarizing core
- 4 layers of UV400 (which is the maximum UV protection)
- 2 layers anti-scratch
- 2 shock absorber.

And all this forever! Yes, you read well. Joplins sunglasses put their skin on the game by providing 100% lifetime warranty on all sunglasses and will replace any pair of glasses with defects caused by materials and workmanship.
