Recently, a client reached out to Saffren & Weinberg involving a personal injury claim. The client was seriously injured in an auto accident. His injuries included but were not limited to, multiple fractures, contusions and abrasions, amnesia, loss of consciousness, and severe strains and sprains.

"Auto accidents are one of the most common types of personal injury cases. It is estimated that there are over 17,000 auto accidents per day and over 3,200 people die from those accidents," says Saffren. "A lot of these accidents come from the negligence of others, and it's important to obtain justice to those who are wrongly injured as a result of this careless behavior."

When the client reached out about his case, Attorney Ken Saffren was happy to file a lawsuit to get the injured client the justice that he deserved. After a settlement conference with the court, Saffren was able to resolve the case and obtain the injured victim a settlement of $100,000.
