THE PEOPLE'S VOICE

Throughout the years, Weinberg and the rest of his team have been able to win millions of dollars for those who have sustained injuries due to the negligence of others. This case is no different.

There are higher risks of injury when using methods of transportation that don't provide seat belts. In this case, the victim may not have been thrown onto the floor if there were seat belts involved."

Marc Weinberg, Attorney

Recently, Weinberg was able to help a client obtain a favorable, six-figure personal injury settlement. The client was riding a shuttle bus as a passenger. Without warning, the driver slammed on his brakes causing the client to be thrown onto the floor. As a result of this accident, the client sustained multiple injuries including chronic pain syndrome, lumbar sprain and strain, lumbar radiculopathy, thoracic sprain, and other strains.

"Methods of transportation that don't provide seat belts for their passengers make it harder for those passengers to remain safe when involved in a collision. There are higher risks of injury when using these methods. In this case, the victim may not have been thrown onto the floor if there were seat belts involved."

When the client sustained his injuries, he hired the team at Saffren & Weinberg to settle his case. Marc Weinberg was more than happy to help. Weinberg was able to obtain the victim a settlement of $109,000 for his injuries.
