

When You Learn, The World Learns!

LearningOnline.xyz Launches e-learning solution to Create Equal Learning Opportunities

LearningOnline.xyz is taking a socially-conscious approach to e-learning by donating a course for every course completed by a subscribed learner.

CUPERTINO, CA, UNITED STATES, July 2, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Cupertino, 02nd July 2018 – Access to affordable quality learning for most professionals around the world is far from widespread. The World Bank states that two billion working-age adults around the world do not have basic literacy skills required by employers, drastically reducing the chances for a long-term profitable career.

Another alarming fact lies in unemployment among new generations. According to UNESCO, 40% of the global unemployed are between the ages of 15-24 years.

Basic language, communication, and soft skills can transform the futures of people and communities around the world. With this in mind, Learningonline.xyz decided to take action in bridging the skills gap by teaming up with its global community of learners, to provide accessible learning, free of charge for people with limited opportunities.

The concept is simple: for every course, a learner completes on Cudoo, a course is automatically donated to someone deserving, fully involving learners in the development and success of this initiative. Learningonline.xyz is also partnering with non-profit schools and organizations around the world to ensure that the learning resources are given to the people who most need them.

“This initiative allows us to help people who are near and far – be it people in less economically developed countries looking to learn new skills and start a career, as well as people in developed countries who are looking to rebuild/change their lives,” said Ivan Vassiliev, co-founder and CEO of LearningOnline.xyz.

Empowering people has always been a priority for Learningonlinexyz Inc. Since its inception in 2016, the company has developed comprehensive learning resources through innovative technology - such as Cudoo, a comprehensive online self-study platform - allowing people to access quality, affordable learning, quickly and conveniently.

“We want to make a meaningful difference in people’s lives, by providing essential learning resources, while tapping into humanity and social responsibility in all of us. Our mission, throughout our products and services, is to connect all people to learning opportunities that contribute to happier, more fulfilled lives. By involving our learners, we can grow our reach and help even more people around the world lead happier lives,” he added.
