... finding someone who has the combination of engineering knowledge, technical standards, as well as practical experience with automotive parts is a challenge. Mr. Correa is at the very top ...”

Gerold Ennen, Alupress CEO

Commenting on Mr. Correa accepting Alupress' offer, the CEO of Alupress, Gerold Ennen, states “we are very excited to bring Eduardo Correa on board with us. Mr. Correa is highly qualified and finding a certified professional such as Mr. Correas is very difficult. In particular, finding someone who has the combination of engineering knowledge, technical standards, as well as practical experience with automotive parts is a challenge. Mr. Correa is at the very top of his field and we are pleased to have him join us at Alupress.”

Mr. Correa is a Quality Management Expert for the automotive industry, with particular expertise in Quality Management Systems (QMS) implementation. Specifically, he has substantial experience in Radiological Protection and Industrial Radioscopy. He implemented systemic and technical procedures to improve safety and quality issues at various manufacturing companies. Also, at one manufacturer as part of the corporate Steering Committee, he participated in the selection and approval for quality testing X-Ray equipment. His experience and competence in this area are expected to assist Alupress in implementing similar success strategies at its manufacturing site in South Carolina.

Of particular note are Mr. Correa's efforts that lead to the Ford Q1 Certification for a Brazilian automotive manufacturer. Mr. Correa prepared the action plan to achieve the Ford Q1 Certification and lead his quality management team to a high level of performance. In February 2015, that Brazilian manufacturer received Ford's certification. Mr. Correa was critical and essential to that success. Subsequently, that manufacturer received Ford's Top Supplier Award 2016, which is the most important award granted by Ford to its suppliers, based on a broad assessment that includes criteria such as quality and delivery indicators, cost and contributions for their reduction, business relationship, working conditions, product development, service logistics, and manufacturing.

CEO Mr. Ennen adds that "based on his extensive experience and excellent judgment and decision-making ability in [his prior activity on a] Steering Committee panel, I know first-hand that Eduardo Correa has an extraordinary ability in the Quality Management Systems field and I am sure he will contribute hugely to Alupress serving its U.S. automotive manufacturing customers."
