

Stenomask could have saved Scott Pruitt his job and American taxpayers $43,000.00!

NEW YORK, NEW YORK, USA, July 11, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Yes, that's right, Environmental Protection Agency Chief Scott Pruitt spent $43,000 taxpayer dollars on a private sound booth for his office, complete with silenced ventilation and "noise-lock" paneling to keep conversations from being overheard. Subsequently he lost his job. Had he only known about Stenomask.

Stenomask works precisely the same way as the world's premiere sound booths except in pocket-sized form and at a fraction of the price. Stenomask guarantees absolute voice privacy and a crystal-clear sound signal while simultaneously eliminating all background noise. It includes silenced ventilation and noise lock paneling identical to Mr. Pruitt's full sized booth and is compatible with all modern devices including computers, smartphones and tablets. Wherever there is a microphone input, you can use Stenomask.

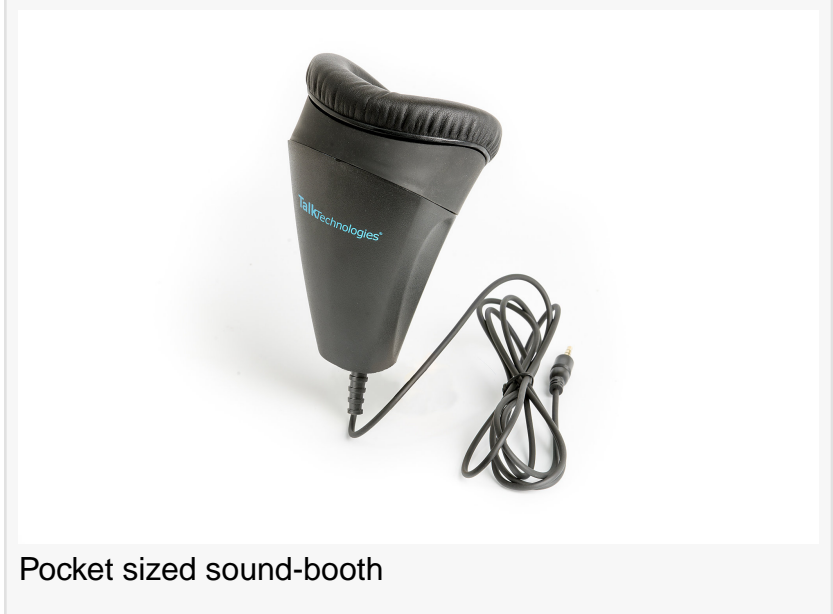

Don't be a Pruitt, save yourself a bundle, keep your job and talk privately anywhere you want.
