

Robert Teweleit's Love of Animals Turns into a Lifelong Dedication to Volunteerism

Robert Teweleit is an altruistic Houston Police Officer who loves to give his time to help animals.

HOUSTON, TEXAS, UNITED STATES, July 20, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Robert Teweleit is a man who loves helping people. Throughout every aspect of his life, Robert Teweleit has made it a priority to serve and protect. Teweleit is a ten-year veteran of the Houston Police Department, where he risks his life every day to protect people. Yet, even when he's off duty, Teweleit is giving to those in need.

One of Teweleit's favorite forms of volunteerism and donation is to benefit the ASPCA. Teweleit loves animals and he makes it his priority to ensure they are being taken care of.

About ASPCA of Houston

The ASPCA of Houston was the first of its kind in the country. Now, after a century of growth, support, and development, the organization is the largest organization on the Gulf Coast. The Houston ASPCA is proud to save and rehabilitate all different species of animals. Therefore, the animals that Teweleit is working with aren't just cats and dogs. There's a host of different animals.

"People seem to forget that other animals need our help too," Teweleit said. "There's plenty of havens for dogs and cats, but other animals, that were exotic pets, or have lost their home" says Robert Teweleit.

Fortunately, the community has answered this organization's call for help for over a century. As a result, the organization investigated seven-thousand cases of animal abuse last year. Plus, the activists help around fifty-thousand animals each year.
