

Tech-powered PassRight and Uber Drivers Team Up

The premiere U.S.-based immigration technology platform introduces how Uber drivers will benefit by teaming up with the first tech-enabled immigration law firm.

SAN FRANCISCO, CA, UNITED STATES, August 8, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- PassRight announced today an exciting new collaboration between San Francisco Bay Area Uber drivers and PassRight, the world's first tech-enabled immigration law firm. The latest collaboration will benefit both the drivers and aspiring immigrants. Uber drivers can earn between $500-$1000 extra each month by becoming affiliates with PassRight. By handing out business cards with personal promo codes to their passengers, Uber drivers will earn commission for every passenger that becomes a PassRight client. Participating drivers earn $2 for every lead and $100 for each purchase, while PassRight clients will receive a 5% discount when purchasing an immigration service using an Uber promo code.

PassRight uses technology to streamline the confusing, expensive and lengthy immigration process. Liran Rosenfeld, PassRight CEO, recognized that Uber drivers around California are mostly first-generation immigrants who can relate to the problem. In addition, as Liran takes his daily Uber-pool to work he constantly meets people who require help. According to Liran, "Everyone at PassRight has a vested interest in bettering the U.S. work visa process. By teaming up with share-ride drivers, we believe PassRight will be reaching potential customers who aren't aware of our company and what we do... all while drivers earn extra money."
