

Level Office Announces Rebranding as Novel Coworking

CHICAGO, IL, UNITED STATES, August 13, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Coworking company Level Office has announced its rebranding as Novel Coworking, a name that more accurately represents the company's goal of partnering with clients to provide the space and resources they need to innovate and write their story.

"As a company, we've grown from 1 to 23 locations nationwide, and over time we've come to realize that our narrative isn't just our own—it's comprised of the thousands of unique stories of our clients. In fact, the constant flow of innovative clients into our space means our identity is always novel," said Bill Bennett, the company's founder.

While the company's name has changed, the ownership remains the same, and Novel Coworking is the largest owner-operator of shared office space in the nation. In 2017, the company was named the third fastest-growing real estate company in the nation by Inc. Magazine, and the 94th fastest-growing private company.

With pricing starting at $99 a month for coworking memberships and $349 for private offices, Novel Coworking seeks to provide small businesses and entrepreneurs with high-caliber amenities that are typically only available to the largest companies, at a budget price. By purchasing the buildings where it operates, Novel Coworking invests in infrastructure improvements including fiber internet and custom-built, multi-office suites for 10 to 100-person teams, all while keeping rents 30-50% lower than competitors.

"It's our hope that as each of our members pens their future in our space, Novel Coworking can provide the blank pages for their success, from the move-in ready office with gigabit internet to the happy hours with a diverse and supportive community of professionals," Bennett said. "We wouldn't have created a story of our own if it weren't for our members, and we're thrilled they've chosen to make us a part of theirs."
