

Project Management Office Hours Host Receives Surprise Donation Live on Air

Sensei Project Solutions Gifts $5,000 in Services for Veterans Project Management Mentoring Program

TEMPE, ARIZONA, USA, August 21, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Joe Pusz, host of the show Project Management Office Hours sponsored by The PMO SQUAD and broadcast from the Phoenix Business RadioX studio in Tempe, Ariz., recently received a generous and unexpected donation from guest Kenneth Steiness, CEO of Sensei Project Solutions, live on-air during their interview. On behalf of Sensei, Steiness announced that he is providing $5,000 in e-learning programs for veterans who are participating in the Veterans Project Management Mentoring Program which is run by THE PMO SQUAD in partnership with Vet2PM and Veterans2Work.

"It's amazing what Joe has done with his program in just six months; the amount of mentors and veterans he has brought in is incredible," said Steiness. "Being a military veteran myself and having a strong connection with this community, I really wanted to do something to help support Joe's efforts. I'm very proud to have the opportunity to provide e-learning tools for the program."

The Veterans Project Management Program provides veterans with the tools and opportunities to become successful civilian project managers by matching them with mentors to help them improve their skills, build connections, and grow their careers. To date, they have helped more than 60 veterans across 29 states and three countries.

"I have been fortunate in my career to have several mentors help me along my journey. I wanted to find a way to give back to our military and veterans as I've had many family members and friends who have served," said Pusz. "Working with Vets2PM and Veterans2Work, we developed this unique program that is making a big difference. The gift from Kenneth and Sensei will provide our veterans access to training we haven't been able to provide; we are incredibly grateful."

Pusz, who is fondly known as PMO Joe, has been hosting Project Management Office Hours on the Phoenix Business RadioX network since early 2018. The show, which is co-sponsored by TALAIA Project Portfolio Management, features discussions with Project Management industry leaders and covers the latest industry news, trends, and insights to help other project managers learn and improve their craft. Episodes are aired live on the first and third Thursday of each month at 11:00 a.m. and are also available for download on-demand or on iTunes.
