Referring to the benefits of leading-edge computer technology, Bowyer said, "If it makes my racecar faster than everybody else's car, then I'm all for it. While these are stock cars, the technology behind them is impressive and the research and development that goes into all the parts and pieces we use to build these cars is cutting edge. Technical support and race support go hand in hand, and to have an in-house partner in ITsavvy makes our program that much better.”
