Aluminium powder is powdered aluminium. This was originally produced by mechanical means using a stamp mill to create flakes. Subsequently, a process of spraying molten aluminium to create a powder of droplets was developed by E. J. Hall in the 1920s. The resulting powder might then be processed further in a ball mill to flatten it into flakes for use as a coating or pigment. Aluminium powder is non-toxic and is not harmful unless injected directly in a major blood vessel such as the aorta. Aluminium powder, if breathed in, is not particularly harmful and will only cause minor irritation. The melting point of aluminum powder is 660 Å°C.

This report focuses on the Aluminium Powder in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. The production of aluminum powder is distributed evenly in China, North America, Europe. China is the largest production of aluminum powder in the world in the past few years and it will keep the same position in the next few years.

The global consumption of aluminum powder increased from 260 K MT in 2013 to 268 K MT in 2017 at an average annual growth rate of more than 0.72%. In the world wide, the top five manufacturers of aluminum powder are Alcoa, Kymera International, UC RUSAL, Toyal Group and Xinfu Group. And the production of Alcoa occupied about 17% in 2017.

The aluminum powder industry is highly competitive due to low entry barriers as the industry is less capital intensive and there is no major technology involved. Given the competitive landscape of the industry, the bargaining power of players with clients is low thereby resulting in vulnerability to fluctuation in raw material prices.

The worldwide market for Aluminium Powder is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly 2.5% over the next five years, will reach 1060 million US$ in 2023, from 910 million US$ in 2017.
