

Adrian Prospero signs on to direct feature film "The Clairvoyant"

Award-winning Australian filmmaker Adrian Prospero, best known for films like "Once Were Heroes" and "Living with Kanye", has signed on to helm the thriller.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, September 4, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Award-winning Australian filmmaker Adrian Prospero is attached to direct feature "The Clairvoyant." Sources advise us shooting in the United States is due to start in the coming months with James Broadhurst set to produce. Broadhurst recently finished up on the horror feature Derelict for US-based company ITN

Prospero, best known in film circles for executing big-budget commercials while breaking into the indie-scene with award-winner "The Hunt", also penned the script. Described as a murder mystery, the story concerns an investigator's search for a missing woman which turns upside down when a Clairvoyant has visions of the woman's murder. Questions about whether the visions can be trusted, whether the girl is missing and who is to be believed are posed in what sources have told us will have audiences clinging to the edge of their seat.

A favourite in the Australian film industry, Prospero recently directed the advert campaign for Australia's Labor Party for the recent election, helping bring the party to victory in a landslide. The Perth native is known for contributing to social issues with his directing work, as he is currently directing a film on road safety to be used in creating awareness for teenagers. Prospero also directed the documentary "Bronnie" which continues to screen in schools around his home-state.

A co-owner of prolific production and content company White Pixel, Prospero broke onto the film scene more than a decade ago after he won the Revel8 Audience Award at the Perth Film Festival, and has continued to direct multi-million dollar commercials for companies around the world.

"The Clairvoyant" is the latest in a series of feature projects to which Prospero is attached. "The Market Place," an edge-of-your-seat thriller set during the Iraq War, was a recent finalist in the Ojai Film Festival in California, while "The Dig" finished in the top 20% of the Nicholls Fellowship, one of the world's most prestigious international screenwriting competitions administered by the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences.
