The screenshot shows the author's website for the book "The Wizard Who Stole Manhattan". The header features the author's name "Avelino de Castro" and a navigation menu with links for HOME, BOOK, AUTHOR, ORDER, and CONTACT. The main banner image depicts a Native American man on the left and a man in a 17th-century military uniform on the right, with the book cover in the center. Below the banner is a quote: "Tom Lunden had a Masters degree in History. His father, sister, and mother were acute overachievers. Tom loved to work at Central Park. Once a month his family gathered for a meal. Tom referred to a 'Disappointment Day'." There are "LEARN MORE" and "BUY THIS BOOK" buttons. Below the banner is a section titled "About The Author" with a small portrait of the author and a bio: "Avelino wrote his first poem at ten and his father fumed, and screamed with accusations that he had plagiarized it. It must have been a pretty good poem. He was born in New Bedford, MA, at St. Lukes hospital. He attended Acushnet Elementary school then Ford Junior High School in Acushnet, MA. He attended Old Colony Technical Vocational High School in Rochester MA for a time and graduated from New Bedford High School in MA." There is a "LEARN MORE" button. The footer includes the navigation menu and the website URL "avelinodecastro.com".
