

Susan Haller to be Featured on CUTV News Radio

KEEDYSVILLE, MARYLAND, UNITED STATES, September 10, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Chronic pain is a detrimental issue that robs so many people of joy and the ability to live life to the fullest. Millions of people feel their only option is to turn to prescription medicine and over the counter pills to obtain relief. But if there was a natural way to heal instead wouldn't we embrace it with open arms?

Susan Haller is an exceptional Emotion Code certified Practitioner and an Independent Distributor for Young Living Essential Oils.

"I began having excruciating pain in my knees and hips and experienced an extremely negative reaction to pain medicine," says Susan. "But after discovering essential oils and the emotion code, a form of energy healing, my body was restored so remarkably I have been able to completely eliminate all medications and my pain has basically vanished."

When Susan came across Dr. Bradley Nelson and his highly regarded emotion and body code energy healing techniques, she was convinced her purpose was to help others also benefit from its miraculous healing. After an intense training course, Susan received her emotional code certificate, and is now helping other individuals facing physical and emotional pain.

"After my healing sessions I'm delighted to see how my clients' lives are positively transformed because they can finally experience relief from all these taxing emotions that have been weighing them down," says Susan.

Susan wholeheartedly encourages people to seek spiritual connections within their peers or community. She's connected with other healers with the same positive vibration and compassion to help others.

"Self-love is vitally essential for well-being," says Susan. "You must have that to love others and make a positive difference."

For each session Susan engages her clients in light mediation and keenly utilizes muscle testing and a chart to find their trapped emotion she then releases out of their bodies.

"All that anger and toxic emotions we carry around within us can make us physically ill," says Susan. "Not only are we in emotional upheaval but acquire debilitating illnesses like cancer and heart disease."

If you experience anger you may have a trapped emotion from that anger. Clients are returned to their health and vibrancy with her wonderful healing sessions.

"There are over the counter and prescription medicines to take for these same issues but there are always side effects that are not healthy for you when you put a chemical in your body," says Susan. "But with the emotional code you are utilizing pure loving energy that does an even better job with no negative side effects."

Susan recommends people follow a healthy diet and use non-toxic products avoiding all the deadly chemicals found in shampoos, laundry detergent, makeup and cleaning products. Pure oils such as lavender contain no harmful chemicals that are still widely used in numerous products.

"Healing and recovery certainly don't have to be difficult or a long drawn out processes," says Susan. "It's very simple to connect with your spiritual self and a healer like myself than can guide you to your ultimate health and happiness."
