2018 ASHRM Conference (K Todd Wallace, New Orleans)

Mr. Wallace's presentation will provide an overview of the current legal issues facing Human Resource managers, personnel, and practitioners in today's work environment. His presentation will focus on discrimination based on Title VII, the Americans with Disabilities Act, and other laws. He explains that today the challenges for Human Resource professionals are greater than ever: "It has become quite clear that there is a growing legal trend towards expanding Title VII protection. The courts are reviewing matters that, in many cases, are matters of first impression, meaning that the legal issues have not yet been raised by litigant employees. These decisions have profound impacts on employers and their policies and procedures, while prompting many employers to ensure that their internal practices are evolving with the expansion of Title VII protection."

“

Understanding the legal trends is part of it; helping an HR professional to apply the principles learned by these legal trends is the other goal of this presentation.”

K Todd Wallace will also address other challenges facing

HR professional. Mr. Wallace recounts that in preparing for his presentation, he ran an internet search for “greatest Human Resource challenges” and found many blogs and articles on this subject. “The number of ‘Greatest Challenges’ differs according to the various writers, from ‘Top 5 trends and challenges for HR in 2018’ (<https://www.humanresourcesonline.net/top-5-trends-and-challenges-for-hr-in-2018/>), to ‘The 15 Biggest HR Challenges in 2018’ (<https://www.benefitnews.com/slideshow/the-15-biggest-hr-challenges-in-2018>), but all shortlists of such ‘Greatest Challenges’ include technology and the human nature that is still at the basis:

'communications,' 'keeping up with laws and regulations,' 'finding and nurturing talent', and 'new technologies.' Many of these issues will be addressed by colleagues as part of the ASHRM conference. My personal challenge as part of this conference is to provide a legal update that is both educational and practical. Understanding the legal trends is part of it; helping an HR professional to apply the principles learned by these legal trends is the other goal of this presentation."

Other presenters at the Annual conference include:

- Steve Rizzo "Motivate This!"
- Tracy Butz "Candid Conversations that Drive Results"
- Sherry Johnson "The Future of HR: Promoting Business Success in a Changing Global Workplace"
- Aileen Bennet "The Inward Facing Brand"
- Rob Roux & John Williams "Sexual Harassment"
