High government funding for cancer research and clinical trials is augmenting the growth of biomarker market”

OMR Analyst

Increasing funding by the government for cancer research and clinical trials is considered to be one of the major factors for the growth of biomarker market. For an instance: The National Cancer Institute (NCI) in March 2016 had earmarked $5.5 million for funding for the establishment of laboratories with an aim to advance research on biomarkers and biomarker assays for various cancers such as prostate, lung, breast, and genitourinary organs. The Biomarker Developmental Laboratories (BDLs) will be a part of the early detection research network of the NCI. In addition, in January 2015, there was an investment made by the Precision Medical Initiative of $70 million to the National Cancer Institute. The investment was made to recognize the different genomic drivers in cancer and to develop new approaches for detection and cancer treatment.”
