When children become unimportant to a society, that society has forfeited it's future”

“It's our committed, dedicated volunteers who make the difference for CCV's success. Without them we could not put on our amazing events!” said Pam Anderson.

The luncheon was complimentary for nonprofits and volunteers, and was set up to provide nonprofits with networking opportunities and additional tools they need to improve their respective communities.

Mrs. Anderson said, “All of CCV's volunteers love to help children. We're inspired by what L. Ron Hubbard wrote, ‘When children become unimportant to a society, that society has forfeited it's future.’ In fact, everything we do is aimed at making a safe, sane environment for our children's, and society's, future.”
