

Local Medical Startup WeShareMD Expands Into La Jolla

WeShareMD, Plans to Continue Expansion throughout Southern California, with Additional Offices Slated to Open in 2019.

LA JOLLA, SAN DIEGO, USA, September 27, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The San Diego-based medical startup WeShareMD, headed by Dr. James Chao and real-estate developer George Scopetta, is expanding their footprint for the third time this year, making their total assets estimated at over $200M.

The team began their model of providing lease-free medical spaces to local doctors in their Activity Road Medical Center in San Diego, beginning early this year. Due to the demand for flexible office spaces for doctors to conveniently see patients, the startup self-funded two additional locations to open shortly thereafter, in Temecula and Encinitas.

Doctors enjoy the "WeWork" style flexible model because they can utilize the patient examination rooms that WeShareMD offers and benefit from WeShareMD's on-site staff, medical tools and other facilities that come with a WeShareMD membership.

Member doctors have used the startup's services to expand their medical practice to new locations or open a new medical practice of their own. Now, retiring doctors are jumping on the bandwagon as well, utilizing the startup to see their patients a few days per week and foregoing the high-costs and long leases of traditional medical office spaces.

WeShareMD is expanding into the prominent UTC area of La Jolla, CA beginning in October of 2018 and plans to continue its expansion throughout Southern California, with projections of at least 10 additional offices slated to open in 2019.

Doctors interested in joining the WeShareMD membership model can sign up with $0 sign up fees throughout 2018. All members receive access to all WeShareMD locations at a fixed price of $300 for half of a day, with discounts available on larger packages.
