

Konstant Fetches 5-Stars for English Language E-Learning Android App

Konstant has yet again pinned to build a massive new app for English Language E-Learning that would also solidify its mark on the mobile app development industry

PALO ALTO, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, October 3, 2018

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Having an app for translating Arabic to English feels like a modest upgrade to the existing translating services available elsewhere. Konstant made a big play about what it can actually do, rather than gangbanger specification changes, but perhaps that are fair given we're topping out on what a smartphone is really needed for these days. With the increasing demands of having a dedicated app for studying, practicing and learning Arabic words, Konstant was sorely taxed to keep up with other translators online. This app impresses first time users and is convenient for the experient ones. This translator platform streamlines the workflow, making it easy for the users to study and practice words and text messages.

This application impersonates real-time tutors and is especially suited for native Arabians who are not adept with the English language. This app acquits the users from the beginning of learning English to mastering and speaking perfectly like Native Arabians.

This educational app comes as a free gift for all the native Arabians who want to learn English with a record-breaking YouTube channel that teaches English language - The American English Channel: zAmicanEnglish. This channel already enjoys current user base of over 2 lac users.

Like uber for tutor app, where users can study words, notes and achieve level up according to performance in the quiz at end of each topic. Full courses have been provided for learning words, reading lessons, audio lessons, explaining rules, conversation, learning through movies, listening courses to strengthen listening skills of users and many other courses. Each course has a wide range of video and audio lessons. It also includes a list of the words of each lesson through which users can listen to those words to ensure that they do not forget the pronunciation. Users can create their own word lists to put in the most difficult words that they need to review and practice together.

This application for English Language E-Learning has achieved 5-star rating on Clutch, which is a globally renowned independent review and research firm. Primary selection criteria include timely project delivery, adeptness to technological changes and client requirements.

According to Vipin Jain, CEO, Konstant, "We have been leading with simplicity and hard work, putting it on the path of growth through multiple efforts and reforms that breathed life in the mobile app development industry. Spectacles like this have become a familiar experience for us. We have always tried to set possible goals and optimistic time frames and has always tried and true to recalibrate to be a little more realistic."

He further says, "We have always been making internal schedules that are more aggressive than that to match up with external promised schedules. We have been dealing with day-by-day and hour-by-hour forecasts and sometimes even minute-by-minute countdowns and fallouts from missed schedules are severe."
