

HERITAGE antique reclaimed oak adds character to Old Forester Distillery

TELFORD, PENNSYLVANIA, UNITED STATES, October 8, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Opened in June 2018, Old Forester's return to Louisville's historic Whiskey Row harkens back to the history and authenticity of America's First Bottled Bourbon™ in this state-of-the-art facility that celebrates the role of bourbon in Louisville's history. Visitors are able to tour the world-class distilling operation, seeing the bourbon crafting process from start to finish. Guests can engage in orientation spaces, fermentation tanks, a barrel aging warehouse and bottling line. Tasting rooms allow visitors to sample the results as they toast the authentic spirit of the longest, continuously distilled bourbon.

With the Old Forester Distillery project, Brown-Forman Corporation returns home to this new interactive visitor experience and working distillery in the heart of downtown Louisville. Through close collaboration with the New York office of experiential designer Imagination, Bravura has reclaimed the historic façade as a backdrop to an intervention that is sensitive to the scale and character of the surrounding neighborhood.
