According to Vipin Jain, Co-founder, and CEO of Konstant, "Following Agile project management allowed producing smaller deliverables more frequently and efficiently, making it an excellent choice for our team to work in product development, programming, business analysis, and other collaborative areas. But as it was a fragile process that required the right scope, goals, and management. From scoping the work to designing the sprint structure to collecting requirements, managing the project without interfering in the rapid build process, adapting to feedback and closing the project – we were able to manage every single project that we undertook through the agile life cycle. Although there were some real-life challenges that we faced while running projects, we were able to successfully overcome them and were able to trace solutions around them."

He further says, "We learned how to create beautiful applications (knit solutions around them) and it's an exciting time for us to be crowned as best app development agency 2018 in India by BusinessofApps. We will keep delivering solutions and services with persistence."
