Managing and securing a private wireless network, while also enabling a wireless layer with a quality end-user experience requires attention to detail and substantial resources to implement and maintain. Wireless solutions also require configuration adjustments and firmware updates. All of this could be a full-time job for one or more employees. That's where ITsavvy comes in. With extensive expertise in architecting wireless networks, both public and private, from inception through completion, ITsavvy is an established leader in wireless system design and management, advanced wireless survey capabilities, and wireless implementation services. The addition of savvyGuard Managed Wireless completes the comprehensive wireless offering. Through 24/7 dedicated monitoring and remote/onsite support, savvyGuard Managed Wireless gives users peace of mind knowing that both the guest network and the corporate network are always functioning as designed.

ITsavvy President and CEO Mike Theriault said, "The average organization spends a significant amount of time maintaining and troubleshooting the wireless network. This is a waste of resources that would be better leveraged elsewhere. Our Managed Wireless Solution eliminates that burden and ensures efficient operation."
