

The Church of Scientology Choir Performs Music to Uplift and Unite the Community

CLEARWATER, FLORIDA, USA, November 8, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- On Sunday Nov. 4th, the Church of Scientology Choir performed a musical showcase at the Scientology Information Center in downtown Clearwater. Guests clapped along to well-known favorites crossing several genres and decades.

The Church of Scientology Choir originated in the United Kingdom in the 1960's where early Scientologists put the concepts of their religious beliefs to song in celebration of their spiritual advancements. The Clearwater chapter of The Church of Scientology Choir was formed in 1993, in continuation of that tradition.

"We love music and we love to sing! We're an all-volunteer church choir and our goal is to perform as often as possible reaching out into the community and lifting spirits," said recording artist and choir member Karen Nelson Bell. "Even though we're a church choir, tonight isn't about church music - it's about uniting the community with a night of favorites from five different decades."

"Amber Skjelset, Manager of the Information Center said, "In a fitting remark that sums up music, L. Ron Hubbard once said, 'In music, the hearer can contribute his own motion or emotion. And even if the music is a single drum, if it elicits a contribution of motion or emotion, it is truly art."

The Choir's next performance at the Scientology Information Center will be on December 1st between 6-8pm. The Scientology Information Center is open daily from 10 am to 10 pm.
