

Co-Diagnostics Inc CEO Discusses Pathway to Revenue and Company Advancements with Wall Street Club TV

NEW YORK, USA, November 27, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The interview with Dwight Egan, CEO of Co-Diagnostics Inc, (Nasdaq: CODX) a molecular diagnostics company with a unique, patented platform for the development of molecular diagnostic tests, is now available on www.wallstreetclub.com.

we are excited that during this fourth quarter we are going to be coming into revenues, and then continually growing that through 2019 and on to the future.”

Ike Egan, CEO

The interview addresses several questions regarding Co-Diagnostics' recent and upcoming scientific, strategic, and commercial milestones, including the following excerpt discussing the potential for near-term revenue:

WSCtv: It sounds like you are building quite a lot of momentum in this regard as well. Where do you see that momentum leading?

Mr. Egan: Well of course, we see it leading to increased sales and profits. We are involved in three very strong verticals in addition to the opportunity to license our technology and our software to thousands of labs around the world who are doing research and development in very diverse areas of the genome, whether it's animal, plant, or human. So, we are excited that during this fourth quarter we are going to be coming into revenues, and then continually growing that through 2019 and on to the future.
