

Important information about being charged with Vehicular Manslaughter

A vehicular manslaughter charge can carry up to six years in a state prison in California, says Los Angeles criminal defense attorney Arash Hashemi.

LOS ANGELES, CA, US, December 14, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- What is vehicular manslaughter? In short, it means someone was driving a vehicle in a way that could kill someone or did kill someone.

"The basic charge of vehicular manslaughter is bad enough. Other factors like a DUI can make manslaughter jail time even worse," Mr. Hashemi said. "The Prosecution is going to file as many charges as they can in hopes of getting the maximum possible sentence. They want to make an example of such offenders."

A determined defense is needed to refute the charges. Mr. Hashemi is an experienced criminal defense attorney. He has successfully defended many people facing similar charges.

"The first thing we have to do is determine if the charges are valid and accurate. We look over all the evidence carefully. We check the law enforcement records and reports of the incident too," he said. "We look for mistakes, errors and judgment calls by the officer that are just wrong."

If the case has to go to court, then having an attorney is very important. Study after study shows that people who face criminal charges fare much better in court if they have attorney representing them versus representing themselves.

"Do you know criminal law procedure for California? Most people do not. As a criminal defense attorney, I do. I attend regular training seminars to learn about new laws and court decisions that affect vehicular manslaughter cases," said Arash Hashemi. "I bring all this knowledge and experience to my client's cases."
