

The Futurist Institute Releases The Robot and Automation Almanac - 2019

Data and AI will be critical for robot and automation development in 2019, according to experts, executives, and investors.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, USA, December 17, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Futurist Institute has released a groundbreaking new book, The Robot and Automation Almanac - 2019.

This innovative book contains essays from 20 robot and automation experts, executives, and investors that all answer one question: What will happen in the fields of robots, automation, and AI in 2019?

Jason Schenker, the Chairman of The Futurist institute and the world's leading financial futurist, has been the driving force behind The Robot and Automation Almanac. "People are interested, curious, and concerned about robots, automation, and AI. So, we asked the question: What's next? We created our first almanac with an outlook for 2018 and it was a bestseller that has since been translated into Chinese. We are now proud and excited to release our 2019 edition to help people see how robots, automation, and AI will be impacting their companies, professions, and jobs in 2019."

The impressive list of contributors to The Robot and Automation Almanac - 2019 includes Samuel Alexandersson of Kollmorgen, Djamila Amimer of Mind Senses Global, Fred van Beuningen of Chrysalix, Keith Blanchet of Kinova, Jeff Burnstein and Robert Huschka of the Association for Advancing Automation, Lorenzo Carver of SpreadBot and CoinSwipe, Brian La Cour of Applied Research Laboratories at The University of Texas at Austin, Craig Fuller of Freightwaves, Jason Gouw of Cubit, Rob Handfield of N.C. State University's Supply Chain Resource Cooperative, Maciej Lisiecki of Fox Automation, Jayesh Mehta of Transbotics, Russell Nickerson of Collabots and MassRobotics, David Schwebel of Swisslog, Daniel Stanton of SecureMarking, Kaleb Steinhauer of Genesis Dimensions, Daniel Theobald of Vecna Robotics, Michael Walton of Microsoft, and Bruce Welty of Locus Robotics.

The history of robots and automation is being written now. I am very excited that The Robot and Automation Almanac and all of its contributors will be part of that history.”
