brokering industry, and since that time it has evolved from exams being held at the TIA conference using blue books, too, to an online course anyone can access at home or work,” says Sean Tucker, Education Manager at TIA.

What is the Certified Transportation Broker Certification?

The Certified Transportation Broker Certification, or CTB, is a rigorous program designed to heighten professionalism and integrity of property brokerage for third-party logistics companies, or 3PLs. Through the program, which includes home-study and exam components, has been called the “most widely recognized distinction in the transportation industry.”

The program includes modules on:

- Case law as it pertains to workers' compensation, damage claims and more
- Contracts and pricing
- General business principles, such as marketing, accounting and finance, and risk management
- Regulatory changes and how to keep up with them
- Traffic management involving best practices for claims, fleet and shipment, including international traffic management

Why CTB is Essential

The CTB certification is an essential measure of a company's professionalism and commitment to excellence. Because the program was developed more than 30 years ago – and because it's been through several evolutions to keep up with the most current regulations and best practices – it's one of the most widely known and well-respected distinction in the industry.

For most 3PLs, the CTB certification provides an extra edge. It lets consumers know that the company has a broad knowledge base, tremendous professionalism and integrity, and is committed to serving customers in the most appropriate ways.

The team members who earned the CTB certification include:

- K Bardwell
- Kenton Sprayberry
- Chris Nester
