

Kathy Bates to lead LE&RN charge on Capitol Hill in fight against LE & LD

LE&RN activists will meet lawmakers on 3/29/19; followed by 3/30/19 Lincoln Memorial Walk & Rally

NEW YORK, NY, USA, January 3, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Kathy Bates, Academy Award-winning Actress, is a longtime and outspoken advocate for the lymphedema (LE) and lymphatic disease (LD) communities, primarily through her role as Spokesperson for the Lymphatic Education & Research Network \(LE&RN\). For the second year, Ms. Bates will bring the power of her celebrity and her passion for the cause to Capitol Hill, leading like-minded activists in a day filled with Congressional office meetings in the fight against LE and LD. The next day, activists will meet on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial for the second annual DC Walk & Rally to Fight Lymphedema & Lymphatic Diseases.

“Only those who struggle with LE and LD know what it’s like to battle these diseases every day,” said Kathy Bates. “So, I’ll be making my way, alongside an army of activists, to tell our lawmakers that we are here, and we have demands. We want a cure – and a cure that not only prevents progression, but that reverses LE and LD. Until then, we need greater awareness in the medical community and more money for research. I will continue this fight until our lawmakers recognize how crucial this is to millions of Americans and hundreds of millions around the world.”

“LE&RN Spokesperson Kathy Bates has proven to be a force to be reckoned with on Capitol Hill, and she never gives up,” said William Repicci, LE&RN President & CEO. “On March 29, we will once again gather in Washington, D.C. to ask Congress to ensure that $70 million of the National Institutes of Health’s increased budget will be allocated to lymphatic research. We will also advocate for the Department of Defense to include “lymphatic diseases” as a medical research area and will urge the passage of the Lymphedema Treatment Act (LTA), which would ensure
