BOSTON, MA, USA, January 7, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- BlackFacts.com, the Internet's longest running data-driven website on the historical and cultural contributions of people of color, is launching a new membership offering.

In the words of of the late Arthur Fletcher - former head of the United Negro College fund, "A mind is a terrible thing to waste!"

Learn Black History. Teach Black History. Create Black History

This Holiday Season and in the months leading up to Black History Month, BlackFacts.com is inviting our community to help educate and inform our youth and students by giving them a gift that keeps giving back throughout the year.

A mind is a terrible thing to waste!"

Arthur Fletcher - former head of the United Negro College fund

Instead of their daily intake of gossip, silly videos and games - you can now keep your children, friends and favorite student informed and inspired:

---> Learn about Significant Moments and People in Black History

---> Get informed about minority business and professional achievements and inventions

---> Be inspired by unique cultural products and services

---> Receive inspirational quotes and speeches

---> Access to Historical Videos, Quizzes and Game

All of this and more - as BlackFacts.com delivers cultural accomplishments to our members throughout the entire year. Because Black History is not just in February.

Additionally, BlackFacts.com members are able to contribute our historical and cultural archives by submitting new "Facts/Stories/Recipes" or recommend changes to existing "Facts".

This capability follows in the tradition of African Storytellers ("Griots") who preserved the culture and history of their people - handing down that history to the next generations.

One of the primary goals of BlackFacts.com is to protect and preserve the history of our people. So much of the history of people of color has been lost over the years and educational systems are cutting back or totally removing the contributions of people of color from the standard history textbooks. In many cases, subjects like "Social Studies" which focus on diverse cultural histories have been cut from the school curriculum altogether.

We ask you to consider sharing the wealth of knowledge and achievements with you children, students and friends.
